2019/30

Dear Parents/Caregivers,

At this time of year, we start to expect the sun to be out more often. This means that we move into what we call the SUNSMART SEASON. This normally runs from October to April of the next year.

During the Sunsmart Season, children playing or doing lessons outside, without any cover, are expected to wear a suitable sun hat. This should provide cover for the head, and preferably the ears also.

We recommend the bucket hat. At the minimum, a baseball cap is required. Beanies and Sun Visors are not suitable.

We thank Room 18 for their contribution to this week's edition.

We completed a 100-word challenge, which required us to use about 100 words to complete a story with the lead given! Here are two different perspectives ...

It was heavier than expected ...

*Boing boing! "Here I go, make sure you video me, and get a good angle of the trampoline too."THREE,TWO,ONE.....CRACK! The pain! the horror! I couldn't feel anything.My head was spinning like a tornado.I heard mum and dad crying softly.I felt my little brother and sister hugging me as if I were a pillow.I heard the ambulance sirens a distance away.I felt the paramedics slowly lift me on this bed.I could feel my blood rushing through my veins. I felt my grandma's hand slip into mine.I felt sweat dripping.Yeah,The pressure ...it was heavier than expected...

IT WAS HEAVIER THAN I EXPECTED

I woke up and I peeked out the window. It was a bright, lovely day I couldn't wait to play. I got ready, made my bed and had breakfast. I ran outside and jumped onto my trampoline and jumped super high. I started to get tired after all that jumping so I lay on the trampoline not knowing what to do, then I ran to the freezer and got me an ice block. I sprinted outside again and ate my ice block, but then it unexpectedly started to rain, it was heavier than I expected. I then went back inside,upset, wanting to play outside again.
